200-key Los Cabos resort to debut in 2017

WATG's Monica Cuervo and Mark Yoshizaki are serving as the project's lead architects, while Severine Tatangelo of Studio PCH, the architectural designer who created Nobu Restaurant Malibu, is spearheading the interiors, including the design of the new hotel's Nobu Restaurant and Bar.

Plans for the luxury locale include guest rooms and suites bearing a design inspired by both Japan and the hotel's beach location, project participants say. The project will also feature a signature beachfront restaurant along with event and meeting space, a spa, retail stores, and multiple dining and lounging concepts.

"The Nobu Hotel Los Cabos will represent a new and differentiated luxury product, which will be unique for both Los Cabos and the wider resort community," says Trevor Horwell, Nobu Hospitality chief executive.

The resort marks the ninth hotel from Nobu Hospitality, a private company owned by chef Nobu Matsuhisa, Robert DeNiro and Meir Teper.
